

STETSON CASE IS FURTHER SAYS FARRIS

Alfred Farlow, head of the publication committee of the Christian Scientists, today refused to consider with any seriousness reports from New York that the backers of Mrs. Augustus Stetson are preparing to offer a stubborn resistance to the order of Mrs. Eddy withdrawing Mrs. Stetson's name from the list of practitioners.

"The matter is ended," said Mr. Farlow today.

As far as the local church is concerned, Mrs. Stetson is to be regarded as no longer a member of the church in regard to the work of the church in the city.

In the meanwhile the mother church in New York, who are not following the churches as laid down by Mrs. Eddy, Mr. Eddy, of No. 41 West 12th street, has been added to the list of those barred from active practice. Mrs. Eddy, the members who retired against Mrs. Eddy.

The only act that resembles unbecomingly the church in New York is the one in the equipment of Haynes Davis in the New York church, and in the case that led up to the resignation of Mrs. Eddy and other members, and in the case of the church. Since Mr. Davis himself one of those under investigation by the First Church here, it is regarded as an official action to expect him to this responsible position.

CONCORD TAXES OF MRS. EDDY OUT ONE-HALF

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 16.—The death of Mrs. Eddy in the Concord church has led to the question of reducing the tax of Mrs. Eddy, who has been a resident of Concord for many years.

The amount of the tax paid last year was about $100. This year it will be $50.

The decrease was considered wise since Mrs. Eddy had been a resident of Concord for many years.

It was considered that if Mrs. Eddy had been a resident of Concord for many years, she should have been treated as a resident of Concord.

French "Immortal" Will Wed Beauty Half His Age.

PARIS—Anatole France, the celebrated author, one of the "Four Immortals" of the French Academy and sixty-five years old, is to wed Miss Jeanne Brindeau, a charming and comely actress, young enough to be his daughter.

The romance began while on a long voyage to South America some months ago. Scarcely had the ship left her when M. France was presented. M. France, instead of the monotonous hours he had devoted, found the time passing delightfully in Miss Brindeau's agreeable society.

Robbed By Titled Husband.

PARIS—Mlle Genevieve Vix of the Opera Comique has had a rude awakening from her young dream. She is to die at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York this season. Last June she was married to a young Russian with a high sounding name and a string of titles.

It was the Russian's ardent wooing that won the lady. He swore he would kill himself if she rejected him. It developed that the husband had no money and was forced to live on the edge of ruin.

Cracker Silent on Politics.

DEBIL—Richard Craker refuses to make any comment on the candidates or issues in the New York municipal campaign. "I am out of politics here and everywhere else," he says. "I will not interfere one way or the other with the men who are on the spot in New York and who have political conditions there much better than I do."

Actress' Romance Shattered.

BERLIN—The actress Frau Hedwig Wangel, who retired from the stage to devote herself to religious work among the poor and is living in an obscure village near Breslau, has written to her parents expressing a desire to secure a divorce from her husband, Herbert Wangel, in order that she may marry Leon, Karl king of the Salvation Army.

MEI CHANTS PLAN SECOND BIG DINNER

Announcement was made today of the second meeting and dinner of the Retail Merchants of New England at the Hotel Somerset on Thursday evening, October 28. It is in charge of the same committee of the Chamber of Commerce which arranged for the successful dinner in the same place on June 3, when Arthur Brisbane and Robert F. Ogden addressed more than four hundred merchants.

The coming dinner will be more elaborate in menu and service, and it is believed

The record audience which turned out to hear Mr. Brittain and Mr. Ogden will be exceeded in numbers.

The first will be H. Gordon, of the bridge of London, whose great department store, built on his twenty-year experience with Marshall Field & Co. in Chicago, made all Europe talk, and the Chinese in Hong Kong, and the Hungarians in Detroit. Motor Car Company, one of the highest salaried sales managers in America.

By special arrangement the members of the New England Dry Goods Association, which had previously invited Mr. Brittain to address them, will attend the dinner at the same time as the members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

BOOT AND SHOE MEN WILL DINE

The Boston Boot and Shoe Club, the representative social organization of the New England shoe and leather interest will hold its first dinner of the season at the Hotel Somerset Wednesday evening. There will be a reception at 5 o'clock. Alfred W. Donovan will preside. Congregational Week will be the special guest, and will speak on legislation.

Life That May Exist on Mars

Professor Percival Lowell of Harvard is again reported by the newspapers to have discovered signs of life on the planet Mars. The world at present is disposed to poke fun at him, but if he should succeed in demonstrating the truth of what he claims he would be universally recognized as the greatest explorer and discoverer of all times—as much GREATER than Cook and Peary combined as Mars is farther from us than the north end of the earth's axis.

For the discovery that any planet, other than our own, is humanly inhabited would at once put a new and thrilling construction upon the entire stellar universe. It should be understood, however, that Professor Lowell does not claim to have seen with his Flagstaff telescope any so minute objects as "canals."

His argument is as follows:

It is known that during Mars' Winter there is snow around its poles. As the season advances this covering of white disappears. Shortly thereafter long, straight lines are seen to extend themselves across the body of the planet. These lines the professor does not suppose to be "canals," but broad stretches of vegetation that have grown up on either side of waterways that have been filled by the melting of the polar snows. The tracks of vegetation are so straight, and the assumed waterways are also therefore so straight, that the latter are claimed by him to be not the work of nature, but the product of some kind of human intelligence.

In these days, WHEN SO MANY OF THE WORLD'S SECRETS ARE BEING UNCOVERED, he would be an audacious prophet who should venture to predict that there are no humans living on Mars, AND THAT WE SHALL NOT SOME TIME COME INTO CORRESPONDENCE WITH THEM.

Restitution Cannot Cheat the Law

If restitution of stolen funds could condone dishonest banking it is probable that men like Charles W. Morse of New York and John R. Walsh of Chicago would go free.

The law holds differently. As interpreted by the highest courts, the law holds that when a banker steals the funds of depositors he must pay the penalty of his crime, whether full restitution is made or not.

That is the gist of the decision by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, when it affirmed Morse's sentence to fifteen years in a federal prison. That was the gist of the decision by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago when it affirmed the sentence of John R. Walsh to five years imprisonment at Fort Leavenworth.

Morse made another fortune, after his first imprisonment, and paid his creditors. Walsh's defenders point to the fact that no depositors lost a penny by his crime, and that, if given his freedom, every one of Walsh's creditors will be paid in full.

It is the same old story of gauging law enforcement by material standards. The rich criminal, who can save his victims by restitution, is to be judged by a different standard than the criminal who can neither refund the loot nor hire an expensive galaxy of lawyers.

The criminal law, once broken, is no respecter of persons. If restitution were an atonement for crime there would soon be no honest banking worthy of the name.

The personality of criminals can cut no figure in a fearless enforcement of the law's penalties. Neither can restitution, though gratifying and commendable, satisfy outraged justice.

If it were otherwise the criminal law would cease to be the protector of bankers and depositors alike.

The Ideal Season for Walking

Walking is the ideal exercise for the man or woman of sedentary habits.

It is the one exercise which rich and poor alike can enjoy—it costs nothing and it brings its reward of health, vigor, clear brain and energy to all alike.

The Autumn season, which is at its height now, is the ideal time for walking. There is warmth in the sun, yet it is not too hot for comfort; the air is full of oxygen, and the cool nip in the breeze makes the blood circulate freely and wholesomely; the country is wonderfully beautiful in its early Autumn tints, and the country roads are in excellent condition for walking.

Don't run the machine too long without giving it new supplies of fuel, and oxygen is the fuel of life. You will find but scant supply in your close, indifferently ventilated office; you will not get enough of it in your overheated flat. GO OUTDOORS.

A word of advice to those who would take up walking: Do not overdress. Dress warmly, but not too much. Wear a flannel shirt next to your body. This will absorb the perspiration and keep you from catching cold. Wear heavy boots and loose-fitting clothes and walk erect with the head held high and the chest well thrown out. Breathe deeply, inhaling through the mouth and holding the breath for a few seconds each time. You will find that this will make the blood tingle all over your body, which is evidence that the oxygen is getting into your blood.

Begin to-morrow. Try walking two miles, and then the following Sunday stretch it to three miles. YOU WILL FIND AN IMMEDIATE BENEFIT FROM IT.

EDITORIAL POINTS

Poor old Spain finds herself in the lamentable plight of all nations that fail to profit by their own experience or the lessons of history.

Under the Roosevelt regime, Mr. Crane of Chicago would doubtless find a place promptly in the Ananias Club.

Mr. Peary says the Eskimos told him so. Well, he saw them; we didn't.

Dartmouth gave President Lowell an honorary degree, but ask the students up at Hanover, N. H., what they are going to give some Harvard students at the Stadium pretty soon.

Good motto—Get there first. If you don't believe it, ask Peary what he thinks about all those dollars Cook is taking in on his lecture tour.

The Wright brothers forgot all about that $30,000 the Government wants to give them. Artists always are careless folk.
